

Where to find MCNV

MCNV's Head Office is in Amsterdam, the Netherlands (www.mcnv.nl).

In Vietnam, MCNV has a Representative Office in Hanoi and two project offices in Dong Ha, Quang Tri province and Nha Trang, Khanh Hoa province, to manage the projects in those regions.

At present MCNV supports a range of programs in 16 provinces, from Cao Bang, Lao Cai, Dien Bien, Ha Giang, Bac Can, Thai Nguyen, Quang Ninh, Hanoi and Thanh Hoa in the north through Quang Tri and Thua Thien Hue in the centre including Dak Lak in the Central Highlands, along the southern coast in Phu Yen and Khanh Hoa to Vinh Long and Ben Tre in the south. Each office has teams responsible for their own programs. Those interested in obtaining more information about any one program can contact either the MCNV Representative Office or the project office managing the program. The programs are described on separate flyers.

Medical Committee Netherlands - Vietnam

MCNV's Mission:

"To translate the solidarity of individual donors in The Netherlands into effective structural improvements in the health situation of groups who need it most in the Vietnamese society and in other Southeast Asian countries."

MCNV's activities are aimed at:

1. Contributing to the effective and structural improvement of the health status and quality of life of disadvantaged groups in the Vietnamese population, and other countries in Southeast Asia, by developing methods in collaboration with MCNV's counterparts to include disadvantaged groups in the development process;
2. Providing information, in the broadest sense of the word, about Vietnam and other Southeast Asian countries to the public in The Netherlands.

Historical background

MCNV is an international NGO based in the Netherlands that has been supporting health development in Vietnam since 1968. Since 2004 we also have programs in Laos.

MCNV began as a solidarity organization during the war years, which explains the use of 'committee' in its name. At that time most of the support consisted of medical supplies, which also explains the use of the word 'medical' as opposed to a word like health or development more appropriate to our activities in the last decade. The core basis of our support is still the contributions received from individual donors in the Netherlands who wanted to help Vietnam recover from the devastations of the war.

The MCNV support started with shipments of medical supplies, but moved towards reconstruction during the immediate post-war years and during the past decade or more, to a focus on capacity building.
